Winter is Kennebunkport's Season of Serenity

Winter is Kennebunkport's quiet season and many believe it is the best season. During the wintry season, visitors to this historic seaside town can experience the true flavor of Maine, "The Way Life Should Be," unhurried, peaceful, tranquil.

Wooded paths, windswept sandy beaches, and dramatic coastline, combined with 17th and 18th century village architecture create a vibrant picture of Kennebunkport during the winter season. The best of our region's shops and restaurants are open and ready to welcome special guests during this quieter time of year.

Dock Square in Kennebunkport village is just three blocks from the Captain Lord Mansion. This village center hosts numerous delightful boutiques; each filled with curios and handcrafted treasures. Shop owners are pleased to spend time with visitors during this less hurried season.

Maine is an antique shopper's haven and winter is an ideal time to scout out that rare and valuable find. Many antique dealers and collectors stay open throughout the winter, and some even offer appointment times for visitor to view their collections in person.

Kennebunkport is home to some of the finest cuisine in Maine, the Northeast and the country for that matter. Winter is the perfect season to savor the fine dining establishments that have captured awards from top gourmet publications. A carefully prepared meal over candlelight is the ideal conclusion to a refreshing winter's day in Maine. Whether you choose freshly caught Atlantic seafood, or any of the artfully prepared chef creations, our dining establishments promise diners a warm inviting atmosphere and unhurried service.

Winter is also the best time to experience the romantic essence of the guest rooms of the Captain Lord Mansion. Oversized four-poster beds plump with down comforters provide a haven for lounging and loving. Toasty gas fireplaces create a warmth that envelopes all the nooks and crannies of each sumptuous guest room. Relaxing is the byword of our quiet season. Many guest return year after year, reserving their favorite room to celebrate an anniversary, or birthday.

Serenity Season Rates are valid mid-week November and December, except the holiday week between Christmas and New Year. Serenity Season Rates are also valid January 1, 2003 to May 22, 2003 and mid-week the entire month of June, 2003

Guests can extend their "Serenity Season" (January through May only) weekend getaway for a 3rd night (Sunday or Thursday) at a 50% discount from the regular quiet season mid-week rates.
